Suspension of Portuguese segment on 15 February 2010

Following a network issue in Portugal, NYSE Euronext decided to suspend trading on the Portuguese equities' and warrants and certificates' segments from 13:50 until 14:20 CET.

Trading was halted and then resumed as follows:

- Portuguese equities' segment was halted from 13:50 until 14:15 CET
- Portuguese warrants and certificates' segment was halted from 13:50 until 14:20 CET.

NYSE Euronext's network infrastructure is designed and built to be fully resilient. Nevertheless, due to cumulative local issues which had an impact on both the primary and back-up accesses, clients in Portugal were unable to connect. All members were successfully reconnected to the market at 14:00 CET, however, and network services will be restored to full resilience tonight.

Trading of equities and all other Cash Market instruments (bonds and ETFs included) for the French, Belgian and Dutch segments remained opened for trading.

NYSE Euronext is taking all necessary measures to avoid a reoccurrence of this issue and apologises for any inconvenience caused by this incident. We remain at your disposal should you have any further questions.
